

Polish Liner Crashes With Five Americans

MOSCOW (AP) — A twin-engined Polish airliner carrying eight passengers—five of them Americans—crashed in a storm last night while coming into Moscow. Three Americans were taken from the wreckage alive. The two others were missing.

The three American survivors were identified as Mrs. Margaret Temper, her daughter, Michelle, 14, and Richard Cheverton, all of Grand Rapids, Mich.

They were on a tour of the Soviet Union sponsored by television station WOOD-TV in Grand Rapids. Cheverton is news director for the station.

Listed as unaccounted for were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Becker. Becker is a Grand Rapids insurance man.

Three American newsmen stationed in Moscow—Harold Milks and Roy Essayan of The Associated Press and Irving R. Levine of the National Broadcasting Co.—helped rescue the survivors.

They heard a woman's voice calling "I'm cold, I'm cold, help. My legs hurt." They found Mrs. Temper pinned in the wreckage and pulled her out and carried her to an ambulance on a stretcher.

Mrs. Temper's young daughter Michelle and Cheverton, who were rescued later, were both badly bruised and suffering from shock.

Mrs. Temper was believed the more seriously hurt but the extent of her injuries could not be determined immediately.

The Polish airliner was carrying 12 persons—eight passengers and a crew of four—from Warsaw.

The only known survivor other than the three Americans was the Polish stewardess. Six bodies were counted at the scene.

Cheverton, interviewed in a Moscow hospital, said:

"The weather was fine after leaving Warsaw, until we approached Moscow, when we ran into a storm. The plane began kicking and bucking and the pilot went down to an altitude of about 600 feet, just under the clouds."

"We continued toward Moscow for about a half hour at this altitude. I was worried and tightened my seat belt."

"Suddenly there was a noise, and we were scraping tree tops. Then there was a great down draft, and the next thing I knew I was in the mud."

Nasser's Link With Arab World Fades

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, whose pan-Arab nationalism sounded like a bugle call throughout the Middle East only a few months ago, is becoming increasingly isolated from other Arab leaders.

But he undoubtedly remains a rallying point for the masses of Arab nationalists—even here in Westward-looking Lebanon.

Even Kings Saud of Arabia and Hussein of Jordan—who have grown to fear Nasser's pretensions to leadership of the Arab world and his playing of the Soviet game against the West—echoed his doctrine of "positive neutrality," hostility to "foreign plots" and Arab unity against Israel in a joint communique signed last night in Amman, where Saud is nearing the end of an official visit. They do not, as yet, dare to attack him directly.

Though Nasser's hold on the masses remains strong, his prestige with other Arab governments is sinking.

One by one his friends or nervous allies have slipped away or turned angrily against him. Now only Syria remains an important partner in this world middle ground where East and West vie for influence.

Nasser's growing isolationism showed in hold relief this week. Jordan threw out his military attaché, accusing him of breaching a plot to assassinate members of the Jordan royal house and government. The action came while Saud was visiting Hussein.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, when asked whether Dulles for a fact had reprimanded Stassen, refused to confirm or deny it. But on top of the reports about the reprimand came his:

So-called "responsible informants"—no doubt at the State Department told reporters the department had assigned Julius Holmes, high-ranking diplomat, to follow Stassen to London as his adviser.

They said Holmes' long experience in diplomacy will help Stassen keep within State Department policy.

Stassen could hardly suffer a worse rebuff than that since, by letting Holmes' assignment is practically saying it can't afford to let Stassen out of its sight.

But Stassen, taking off again for London yesterday, denied he had been reprimanded by Dulles. He conceded he had been given new "procedural" instructions. A word like that might include instructions on almost anything.

Stassen was smiling and appeared unperturbed as he left. They're not new for him. "You never think the roof fell

Stassen Like Man With Cut Throat

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this town you can get your throat cut so neatly you never know it happened till you shake your head or someone shakes it for you.

Harold Stassen has just been made to look like an errand boy who can't be let out alone without a guardian, although his job is to try to work out a disarmament agreement with the Allies and Russia.

It might seem a man given this gigantic assignment could be trusted to handle himself with the best. But yesterday it was learned the State Department is putting a top-level diplomat with him to give him on-the-spot guidance.

For a long time Stassen had—who three times sought the Republican presidential nomination ever got to the presidency.

But for the past few months he has been working under the State Department, which means under Secretary of State Dulles.

Suddenly this week Washington developed enough leaks to sink perhaps even a harder ship than Stassen who, no matter how hard he is rebuffed, always manages to look like a man saying: "Ain't things getting dandy?"

The leaks—some apparently came out of the State Department although that isn't necessarily where they started—reported that Dulles had reprimanded Stassen for the way he handled himself in Europe.

Twice he has flown back and forth across the Atlantic, coming here to talk over with the State Department his disarmament talks in Europe, and coming back to talk some more.

American allies—particularly Britain and France—had complained the trouble with Stassen was that he talked too much and with the wrong people.

They complained about his private talks with Valerian Zorin, Russian representative at the disarmament conference. This reflected a fear he might be negotiating with Russia behind their backs.

As a future presidential candidate Stassen already looked like a man with his future behind him. Now it wouldn't be surprising if he began to fade out soon even as a member of the Eisenhower administration.

Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic leader, said yesterday Stassen had been trying to undercut Dulles seems to have been successful in giving Stassen "enough rope to hang himself."

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, when asked whether Dulles for a fact had reprimanded Stassen, refused to confirm or deny it. But on top of the reports about the reprimand came his:

So-called "responsible informants"—no doubt at the State Department told reporters the department had assigned Julius Holmes, high-ranking diplomat, to follow Stassen to London as his adviser.

They said Holmes' long experience in diplomacy will help Stassen keep within State Department policy.

Stassen could hardly suffer a worse rebuff than that since, by letting Holmes' assignment is practically saying it can't afford to let Stassen out of its sight.

But Stassen, taking off again for London yesterday, denied he had been reprimanded by Dulles. He conceded he had been given new "procedural" instructions. A word like that might include instructions on almost anything.

Stassen was smiling and appeared unperturbed as he left. They're not new for him. "You never think the roof fell in on him in 1956 when he tried to block the renomination of Vice President Nixon at the Republican convention. He angered and startled the Republican bosses and none rallied to his side.

He was left strictly alone. But, unabashed, Stassen got up and seconded Nixon's nomination at the convention. Nixon has had very little to say about Stassen publicly.

Washington is wondering now who first leaked the news of Stassen's trouble with Dulles.

Questioning of Cross Is Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee postponed its planned questioning today of James G. Cross, president of the Bakers Union.

Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the session was called off because he was tied up in U. S. District Court with the contempt of Congress trial of Frank W. Brewster, vice president of the Teamsters Union.

Kennedy said a new date for questioning of Cross would be set later. One of the matters to be taken up with Cross is testimony linking him with receipt of union funds by a convicted prostitute.

The committee has been told a week ago. Among other things found their way to an attractive Los Angeles brunelle, Mrs. Kay Lower, and that she also was supplied with automobiles paid for by Cross' union.

Mrs. Lower invoked the Fifth Amendment many times in an appearance before the committee a week ago. Amoth other things, she refused to answer questions on whether Cross beat her for giving another man a diamond ring that the committee contends was bought with union money.

Atlas Proves Self, Military Is Silent

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The intercontinental Atlas proved itself a success except for one relatively minor defect, the Orlando Sentinel said today. The military remained silent.

The newspaper said it learned from reliable sources that the failure of one of the Atlas' two rocket engines caused it flirts to destroy the big missile intentionally soon after it shot from a launching pad Tuesday at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Observers saw the missile rise nearly two miles, then dip right itself, dip again and explode. The Sentinel said it was possible that the dips resulted from imbalance created by failure of one engine.

The two liquid fuel rocket engines were built by the Rocketdyne Division of North American Aviation Co., with a designed thrust of 100,000 pounds. Convair Corp. at San Diego, Calif., is prime contractor for the Atlas.

The Atlas' power on paper would carry it 5,000 miles, fast enough to take a hydrogen bomb to Moscow in 30 minutes. Its mechanism also is under study for use in a project to photograph the moon's dark side from relatively close-up.

Hussein, Saud Talking Over Troubles

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein and visiting King Saud of Saudi Arabia again have paid lip service to the standard Arab unity positions despite the crack in the Arab front.

The two rulers issued a communique last night on their Amman talks but made no reference to the current bitter dispute between Jordan and Egypt.

Instead, they declared they will "dedicate all possible efforts to preserve the purity of the atmosphere of brotherly relations among Arab states and tighten the national ties among them on the basis of true cooperation and complete understanding."

The communique reaffirmed the doctrine of "positive neutrality," pledged to stay out of "any foreign pact" and vowed to secure "full independence, free from every foreign domination and warrants of the joint Syrian-Egyptian-Jordanian military command remained in Jordan."

The communique again insisted that the Gulf of Aqaba is Arab territorial water under complete Arab jurisdiction and Arab sovereignty.

"They do not recognize any right for Israel or any others to have any right to it," the statement declared.

Of perhaps greatest importance to impoverished Jordan was the announcement the two kings had agreed to study carefully economic cooperation and encouragement of investment of Saudi and Jordanian capital in economic projects in both kingdoms. This presumably was a diplomatic way of saying that Saud might invest some of his vast oil wealth in his neighbor.

Saud flew home today, although it had been announced earlier he would extend his visit—previously planned for six days—until tomorrow or Sunday. There was no explanation of the changes in plans.

Says Frog Man in Shady Business

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today British frogman Cmdr. Lionel (Buster) Crabb "was engaged in a shady business and came to an inglorious end in Portsmouth harbor."

The Soviet commentator went further than British officials in identifying as Crabb a headless body found this week 11 miles from where the Soviet cruiser Ordzhonikidze was anchored 11 months ago.

British authorities have announced no positive identification of the body. The World War II hero was last seen making a dive near the Ordzhonikidze, which brought Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev on a visit to Britain.

The Moscow commentator noted that some reports in the British press have said Crabb was working for U. S. intelligence when he vanished.

The Russian said: "We do not care who Crabb was working for—the British or American intelligence. It is quite possible that he was working for both. One thing, however, is clear: Crabb was engaged in a shady business and came to an inglorious end in Portsmouth harbor."

Reds Offer to Admit Western Inspectors

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union's offer to admit Western inspectors if agreement is reached on a nuclear test ban was seen in Western quarters today as a major step forward in disarmament negotiations. But they pointed out many details must be clarified.

The proposal was put to the U. N. Disarmament Subcommittee yesterday by Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin. He suggested a two or three year halt to nuclear tests with an international committee under the United Nations to enforce it.

Zorin said the Soviet Union would agree to admit Western inspectors if there was agreement to the moratorium on nuclear tests.

Until now, the Soviet Union had rejected Western demands that any halt to nuclear tests be backed up by inspection. The Soviets held that the tests could be ended by a simple agreement among the H-bomb nations, Britain, Russia and the United States.

The immediate reaction from Western sources was that the Soviet proposal represented an important advance but that it needed to be thought out before its significance can be judged.

Jules Moch, French representative, told Zorin an ending of tests would be no guarantee to the halting of production of hydrogen bombs.

The Western position is that the scientific knowledge gained over the years from nuclear tests could permit the H-bomb race to continue. The West insists that inspection and enforcement apply to the production of fissionable materials as well as to test explosions.

Zorin gave no reply when asked by U. S. Delegate Harold E. Stassen if his proposal represented a change in Soviet thinking on the ending of the production of fissionable materials.

Meanwhile, the New York Herald Tribune said in a story from Washington that the Soviet proposal was not acceptable to U. S. officials because it is too long and includes only scientific inspection. The paper said the U. S. feels "it is essential" to include air and ground disarmament policing.

The Herald Tribune said the United States will seek to sell its allies on a 10-month trial suspension of nuclear tests, provided the Soviet Union agrees to do the same.

Possessions of Farouk Are Auctioned

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The auctioneer's hammer banged today in the marble hall of former King Farouk's Abdin Palace in the heart of Cairo.

The Egyptian government put everything on the block, everything from the exiled monarch's electric massager, his shaving kit and soap collection, to sparkling diamond necklaces and emerald rings.

The collection of jewelry, art objects, silver and gold ware, rugs, vases, porcelain, paintings and sundry other objects—1,016 items in all—is being sold by auctioneers at around $200,000.

About 200 Egyptians packed the pillared entry hall for the start of the five-day public sale. Briskly bidding dealers sat in their shirt-sleeves in the steamy heat. Curious women bobbed up and down to get a better look. Fans swished back and forth. One buyer made a penciled calculation on a pillar.

Tubs of iced soda pop stood in the entrance and vendors were kept on the run.

The auctioneer's voice dropped steadily over the loudspeaker system—a silver to akettle and strainer sold for $142, a gold embroidered table cloth went for $100, a set of 40 English-made pipes for $300, a Chinese tea set of 49 pieces for $227, a silver soup tureen for $227.

Authority on Oil Law Succumbs

EL DORADO, Ark. — Judge George M. LeCroy, 73, an authority on oil law, died at a hospital here last night.

LeCroy, who held extensive real estate and oil interests in this area, was the first chancellor of the Second Division of the Seventh Chancery Circuit, a court created in the early 1930's shortly after oil was discovered here. He held the post for about 10 years.

Survivors include his widow, a daughter and five grandchildren.

Reaction to Disarms Plan Encouraging

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's initial reaction to the new United States "first step" disarmament plan was described by officials here today as encouraging on some points.

The Soviet response given privately and informally to Harold Stassen, U. S. disarmament negotiator, is understood to have been discussed in conferences this week between Stassen and Secretary Dulles.

One specific point of encouragement reported was an indication of Soviet willingness to have international disarmament inspectors stationed on Soviet territory.

Stassen returned to London yesterday for further sessions of the United Nations Disarmament subcommittee. He said prospects for East-West agreement are more encouraging now than they were three weeks ago. It was then that a new set of policy decisions were made by President Eisenhower.

Neither the United States plan nor the Soviet response has been officially made public, although Stassen gave Soviet representative Valerian Zorin an unofficial preview of the American plan in a private meeting about two weeks ago.

Authorities said Zorin's informal reply had been incorporated in a paper and it was that document which has been getting some high-level attention here.

The knowledge of it, and the interpretation that it leaves the way open for further negotiations, modified reaction at the State Department to the statement made yesterday by Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

In a news conference in Helsinki, Khrushchev described Western proposals for disarmament control as a "screen to mask plans to continue the arms race."

He ridiculed an American proposal for stung up an aerial inspection zone in the Arctic. The United States has described the Arctic proposal as a testing operation to build confidence and experience in international inspection procedures.

Khrushchev did say, however, that Russia would agree to international inspection posts in Soviet territory if this would hasten agreement on ending nuclear tests.

Injunction to Bar Police Union Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pulaski Chancellor Murray Reed today granted an injunction prohibiting Little Rock officials from enforcing a recently-passed state law outlawing police unions.

His action came after the Little Rock Policemen's Union filed suit in chancery court against Chief Marvin Pels and other city officials charging the 1957 law is unconstitutional.

A hearing has been set for July 25 to determine if the injunction should be made permanent or lifted. The case is expected to go to the state Supreme Court.

The law prohibiting members of police department to join unions went into effect today.

China Releases Two American Missionaries

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China today released two American Jesuit missionaries after four years of imprisonment and house arrest.

Father Charles J. McCarthy, 42, San Francisco, and Father John Alexander Houle, 42, Glendale, Calif., left the Shanghai house where they had been kept in recent months and went to the Jesuit mission headquarters in the Chinese metropolises.

Contacted by telephone from Hong Kong, Father McCarthy said he and Father Houle expected to leave Shanghai for Hong Kong in about 10 days, depending on travel facilities available.

Freeing of the two priests left six Americans still confined in Communist China, three under house arrest in Shanghai and three others believed imprisoned in the Peking-Tientsin area. The number of Americans in Communist Chinese custody has dropped gradually from a high of 55 in 1951.

Father McCarthy reported that he and Father Houle were both in fair health. He said he couldn't tell if he had lost weight because he hadn't weighed in four years. He added that Father Houle was suffering from a back ailment "but is in much better health than before."

"We are very happy to be free again," Father McCarthy said in a halting voice. He said he wanted to tell friends and relatives "how much we appreciate all their thoughts, all their prayers and their sacrifices."

When asked why he left Red China, Father McCarthy replied quickly: "It's been nine years since I've been home and I was homesick."

He said he had been working as a mechanic in a factory in Hankow repairing trucks, cars and tractors, most of which "were pre-war U. S. made."

He said he did not know what he would do on his return to the United States.

Military Talks Over Money, Disarmament

By ELTON C. FAY

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Dollars and disarmament provided prime topics for discussion by military leaders today.

Secretary of State Dulles was among listed speakers as more than 170 officials of the Defense Department's civilian and military top command opened their fifth annual meeting at this Marine base.

It appeared likely that among other things, Dulles would discuss developments in the London disarmament talks—a subject of major interest to military men.

Others addressing the closed meetings are the chiefs of the three military services, Army Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke and Gen. Thomas White, who will become Air Force chief of staff when Gen. Nathan F. Twining becomes chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

On money angles, Secretary of Defense Wilson told a news conference yesterday the military doesn't have any "plastic dollars" which can be stretched to cover the increasing cost of soldiers' salaries and new equipment.

So he thinks the Pentagon is "likely to do whatever is necessary" to keep its spending within a $8-billion-dollar ceiling set in the military budget.

Turncoat GI Changes Mind; Heads For U.S.

HONG KONG, (UP) —American Turncoat Andrew Fortuna, of London, Mich., crossed into Hong Kong today from Communist China where he said he had spent a "pleasant and interesting" three years.

The 31-year-old Fortuna was one of the 21 American soldiers captured by the Communists in the Korean War who chose to live in Red China rather than return home. He is the eighth to change his mind and decide to go back to the United States.

The burly ex-sergeant looked trim and fit as he walked across the border into this British crown colony, smoking a cigarette. He wore a light-colored suit, a checked blue-and-white shirt and brown shoes.

He refused to comment to newsmen at the border crossing point, but distributed three copies of a written statement, dated June 15, 1957. It read:

"My name is Andrew Fortuna. I am an American citizen who has been living in China for the past three years. Having had a pleasant and interesting stay, I am now going home for personal and family reasons."

Fortuna was met on the British side of the "Bamboo Curtain" frontier by U. S. Consul Edwin L. Reeds, Vice Consul Richard Post, and Leland Smith of the American Red Cross. Two British Red Cross representatives also were on hand.

Fortuna was taken directly to the American consulate here where officials rushed him through passport proceedings in order to get him out aboard a ship leaving for the United States tonight.

Within four hours after he had stepped onto British colonial territory, Fortuna had received a passport stamped for one-way passage to the United States and a third-class steamship ticket. He is expected to board the liner President Wilson which is scheduled to sail for the West Coast at midnight.

Fortuna was just as close-mouthed with reporters at the consulate as with the newsmen who greeted him at the frontier.

After considerable prodding, he answered a few questions.

Asked whether he believed in communism, he said: "That's a loaded question. I'd rather not answer it."

To a followup query if he was a Communist, Fortuna replied with a flat "no."

When asked why he left Red China, Fortuna replied quickly: "It's been nine years since I've been home and I was homesick."

He said he had been working as a mechanic in a factory in Hankow repairing trucks, cars and tractors, most of which "were pre-war U. S. made."

He said he did not know what he would do on his return to the United States.

Rain Clouds Over Most of Nation

By The Associated Press
Rain clouds stretched across most of the nation today and more severe weather appeared possible for some central and eastern sections.

The severe weather which continued to pound areas in the mid-continent spread eastward into the Ohio valley and the lower Great Lakes region last night.

Tornadoes, funnel clouds and severe windstorms were reported in several states, including Kansas, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, Tennessee, Arkansas, Nebraska, New York and Pennsylvania. No casualties were reported in the violent weather but damage was extensive.

Tornado and severe thunderstorm warnings were posted during the early morning hours for parts of Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. A twister was reported at Great Bend, Kan.

The Weather Bureau reported tornadoes during the night in the Charleston, W. Va., area, across the southern outskirts of Damascus, in central Arkansas, and in the rural sections of Monroe, Neb.

Funnel clouds were spotted near Pontiac and Ann Arbor, Mich. Several windstorms lashed the Pittsburgh area, at Corning, N.Y., and in parts of the lower Mississippi Valley.

Senate Will Qualify Treaty Agreement

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate ratification of the International Atomic Energy Agency Treaty seemed assured today after the Foreign Relations Committee attached a "qualification" to its approval resolution.

The "qualification"—so described by Sen. Green (D-Rt.), the committee chairman—states that this country will withdraw from the proposed 80-nation agency if it adopts an amendment to its statute which the Senate rejects.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California, who had voiced concern about the treaty, said after the committee acted he believed much of the opposition had been dissipated.

Knowland said the treaty may be debated on the Senate floor next week and that he expects it will win the necessary two-thirds vote after "some discussion."

Before the agency can start functioning, 18 nations must ratify the treaty. At least three of those ratifying must be from among the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada. So far, Russia and seven smaller nations have completed ratification action.

The treaty sprang from President Eisenhower's "atomic-for-peace" proposals to the United Nations in 1953.

Under it, the few nations having nuclear fuels would make them available to the large number of atomic "have-not" countries. But the recipients would have to agree to use the materials for peaceful purposes, such as electric power production, and accept a rigid inspection system.

The language written by the committee into its ratification resolution states it is the "interpretation and understanding" of the Senate that any amendment voted to the statute setting up the agency would be submitted to the Senate. If the Senate rejected the amendment, this country would withdraw from the agency.

French Claim 180 Rebels Are Killed

ALGIERS (AP)—The French today claimed their forces killed 180 rebels during the past 24 hours. They said 10 of their own soldiers were killed or wounded.

Clashes appeared to be sharp west of Algiers, which itself was calm.

The French laid a new massacre of 35 Arab men to the rebel National Liberation Front FLN. The French also attributed the massacre of 303 Algerians in the Melouza area last month to the FLN.

A French communique said the second massacre occurred May 30 in the Wagram area of eastern Algeria. It gave this account:

Thirty FLN rebels, armed with machine guns and rifles, "assembled the male adults from the sections of Ouled Zebouki, Ouled Benkhobba and Ouled Bouhalla and massacred them in two rooms of a farm." Twenty-seven were killed and 16 wounded.

Later, eight men were killed and four wounded in Douar Ouled Filalide, about nine miles to the south.

An FLN statement issued in Tunis charged that the wild anti-Muslim rioting by an enraged French population in Algiers Tuesday killed 61 Algerians and wounded 200. Official French sources listed five Algerians killed in the riots, which followed funeral services for French victims of a terrorist bombing.

Med Student Beau Too 'Plain' for Her Folks

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a college freshman in love with Carl, who just graduated. He's going on to medical school with the aid of scholarships. We'd like to marry after I graduate. The big objection is that my parents, particularly my mother, say they would never approve of him as a son-in-law because his family is "plain." My family has great pride in its ancestry.

I love Carl deeply, but realize a happy marriage could never be built on parental disapproval. Could I hope for a change in my folks' attitude?—Hopeful.

Dear Hopeful: I thought class-consciousness of this type was dead and buried years ago. The age for such snobbishness is gone. If your folks really judge people on achievement, they may very well be extremely proud of their son-in-law some day.

The best cure for people who descend to plain folks is the reading of biography and autobiography. This is one way to awaken them to the facts of life. Many of our great men had very "plain" beginnings.

Time, I think, will bring your parents around to realistic thinking, and time is plentiful.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm just crazy about a singer, but he thinks I'm just another nice kid. How can I make him look upon me as a friend?—CELESTE.

Dear Celeste: Be thankful he sees you as a nice kid and not a darned pest.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My sister-in-law continually finds fault with the way I bring up my two small children. We're a very affectionate family and she claims, among other things, that I'm tying them to my apron strings.

They're only 3 and 5. I certainly don't want to make nubby pampered youngsters out of them but can't see the justice of her criticisms.—V. R.

Dear V. R.: No one knows so well how to bring up other people's children as a sister-in-law. Pay no attention. Do your best; nothing more can be expected.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 22, have three children and am separated from my husband. Two fellows who used to be my steady have proposed. I can't make up my mind which to choose and must know by the end of next week. How can I make my decision?—DOROTHY.

Dear Dorothy: Take time off for a little thinking, consultation and prayer. You still have one husband, and our society doesn't countenance multiple marriages. Settle one problem before taking on others.

Police believe the 35-year-old driver fainted at the steering wheel.

Violence in Haiti Again Threatened

By LARRY ALLEN

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Demands from his supporters that Acting President Daniel Fignole remain in office without elections threaten to bring new violence in Haiti.

But two of the most prominent of the country's 10 presidential candidates are trying to head off a clash. They appealed to their own followers last night to continue to support Fignole's provisional government and not to mix with the Fignole partisans planning to demonstrate on his behalf this weekend.

Rumors persisted of possible new violence. Many Haitians began stocking food and making plans to stick close to home during the weekend.

The Fignole partisans were saying openly they plan a mass march to the presidential palace to demand that Fignole take a six-year term as president without holding promised elections.

Fignole is tremendously popular with the Port-au-Prince workers, and any attempt to interfere with his parade could renew the civil warfare which left 118 persons dead or injured May 25.

Fignole took power May 26 in the latest of a series of government upsets which have kept Haiti in turmoil since last December. He has promised an election soon.

Dr. Francois Duvalier and Clement Jumelle, presidential candidates in backing Fignole's elevation to the acting presidency, said in communiques to their followers that renewal of the civil warfare would have "incalculable consequences." They urged a boycott of the demonstration of the presidential palace.

Duvalier and Jumelle denied reports that they were seeking to upset Fignole's temporary rule.

There was no word from Sen. Louis Delors, another presidential candidate who has bitterly opposed Fignole's provisional administration. His followers—including the Port-au-Prince merchants whose general strikes helped turn out three earlier governments—are the most likely to intervene.

41 Indicted by Nationalist China

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist Premier O. K. Yui today said 41 persons have been indicted for complicity in last month's anti-American rioting and military courts will try them.

Yui said five of those held had past Communist associations but that police had been unable to find any "planned or organized effort" behind the riots. Seventy other persons arrested were released for lack of evidence, the Premier reported.

Yui made a 20,000-word report on the May 24 disturbances in which the U. S. Embassy and U. S. Information Service buildings were wrecked and at least 14 Americans attacked. He said 62 Chinese policemen and 11 rioters also were injured before troops restored order. One of the rioters died later.

The Premier said the riots were an "entirely unorganized and unplanned mob action" caused by Chinese resentment at a U. S. court martial's acquittal of Sgt. Robert G. Reynolds of Calumet, Md. Reynolds had killed a Chinese man while peeping into his wife's bathroom and the Chinese tried to attack him.

"No other complicating factors were involved," Yui said.

LIKED EXCITEMENT
FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—A nude blonde found wandering here gave sheriff's deputies no help what in identifying herself.

"She enjoyed the excitement she caused too much to want to end it," observed Deputy Arthur E. Tabler.

All cleared up after 2½ hours, when Mrs. William H. Shaw telephoned a report that Betty Ann Murray, her 3-year-old niece, was missing from her bed.

Saloons at Garden Have Lean Season

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Saloons around Madison Square Garden are having a slack season. Whatever Billy Graham is reviving, it's not the tavern trade.

"He's killing it," said bartender Joseph Crotty, jerking his thumb toward the arena where Graham is preaching nightly. "Things are dead. It's the same all up and down the avenue."

Before and after the evangelist's meetings, the streets swarm thick with crowds, but behind the neon-lit plate glass of the bars, stools go empty.

"We're getting nothing at all these days," said Victor Scimeca, manager of another tavern.

"When there's a fight or hockey game or anything else at the Garden, we're packed. But this . . . He shook his head, frowning.

Some of the bar hel in the establishments lining 8th Avenue and sidestreets have been laid off, particularly table waitresses.

At a corner cigar store, Frank Goldner, the operator, said they "don't smoke much either. Most of them just buy candy, mints, or books." Goldner has stocked up with some Bibles for the new kind of patrons.

Graham preached to 17,000 people last night, taking his text from Acts 16:12-14, and swelling on this passage: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

What is necessary, he said, is not just an intellectual assent, or a recitation of platitudes, or a mere emotion, but a definite, clear-cut "act of the will" in accepting Christ as "Lord of your life and savior."

At the end of the sermon, 441 people came forward, raising to 16,070 the total "decisions" for Christ during the crusade.

The city's Protestant Church Council said yesterday most of them were joining city churches already.

Likes Idea of Trading TV Films

MOSCOW (AP)—Two of the Soviet Union's leaders say they like Secretary of State Dulles' idea of trading U. S. and Russian TV programs.

First Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and V. M. Molotov talked to American reporters at a British Embassy party for Queen Elizabeth's birthday.

Buoyed by what Molotov called the "success" of Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev's appearance recently before U. S. television, Mikoyan and Molotov said they welcomed Dulles' suggestion this week for a regular exchange of TV and radio programs. Dulles said the United States proposed such an exchange at the Geneva summit conference in 1955 but the Russians were cold to it then.

"I have not heard of this proposal officially," Mikoyan said. "We are in favor of any kind of cultural exchanges. If you want to go ahead and propose it, the Soviet side said such exchanges would be a good idea."

Girls Would Tax Bachelorhood

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Bachelorhood would be taxed under a bill prepared for presentation to the Girls' State Legislature today.

The Girls' State delegates took over Capitol offices and the legislative chambers in their study of government for the afternoon.

The bill would levy a $10 annual tax on all unmarried males 21 or older and would be divided among "unlucky hearts" clubs for the purpose of said such clubs.

Other legislative proposals would: Lower the minimum voting age from 21 to 18. Abolish all billboards along highways by next Jan. 1. Provide a "honey highway" from Texarkana through Pine Bluff to West Memphis.

Anti-Cancer Stock Soars on Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Rumors of a new anti-cancer drug sent a stock soaring on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. But the companies concerned later said the compound "is still in its infancy clinically" and requires much further study to determine its ultimate usefulness.

A rumor swept the exchange, the common stock of the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.—parent company of E. R. Squibb—soared to a new 1957 high.

The stock closed yesterday at $38.50, up $4.02 a share from Wednesday.

After the exchange closed, both companies in a joint statement confirmed the existence of the compound—a steroid—but denied that it was a "cure."

A spokesman for the firms said: "The compound is still in its infancy clinically. Many chemical studies, involving hundreds and often thousands of patients, are conducted before an intelligent evaluation of the drug's utility may be made."

The spokesman said it "clearly would be premature to even attempt a decision as to the compound's ultimate effectiveness at this extremely early point in its testing."

The spokesman described the product as a "palliative"—one that eases rather than causes a specific ailment—and said that it might prove useful "in certain cases of cancer."

The compound is under study at Jackson Memorial Hospital of the University of Miami Medical School, and has been accepted for study by the Clinical Studies Panel of the National Cancer Institute, at Bethesda, Md.

A spokesman for the Sloan Kettering Institute for cancer research in New York said last night that it had used the Squibb product in experiments, adding: "There is absolutely no evidence that it is any more useful than other similar materials that are now on trial."

The Miami Herald said last night that one of the University of Miami researchers who discovered the compound reported it had been tried with some success in halting the spread of breast cancer.

The newspaper quoted the researcher, who was not identified, as saying that 7 out of 20 women breast cancer patients who were treated at Jackson Memorial Hospital showed marked improvement after months of tests.

AP and Union Agree on a New Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—The Associated Press and the AFL-CIO Commercial Telegraphers Union reached agreement today on terms of a new contract.

The settlement came after 14 hours of continuous negotiations conducted by Commissioner Walter A. Maggilo of the U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service.

CTU members operate and maintain Teletype and Wirephoto equipment in the offices of The Associated Press, worldwide news cooperative. Approximately 650 employees are in the union. The contract with them expired last Monday but had been twice extended to last midnight.

The new agreement provides for a one-year contract with a money package averaging $4.02 weekly per employee. Other contract provisions were agreed upon previously.

Harry S. Loimbach, general chairman of Division 14 of the CTU, said that "although the members had authorized a strike, a union committee agreed to the settlement in the interest of continued good labor relations with The Associated Press."

Maggilo said the settlement was reached "subject to ratification by members of the union."

Nehru to Pay England a Visit

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru left by plane today for Syria en route to the British Commonwealth Prime Ministers Conference in London.

On his way home Nehru will stop in Cairo to see Egyptian President Nasser. Informed diplomats in London said the Indian Premier is trying to patch up Britain's broken relations with Syria and Egypt.

The diplomat said Nehru was acting on his own initiative but with British knowledge. He reportedly plans to seek a step-by-step normalization of relations beginning with resumption of trading, banking and other financial dealings.

Egypt and Syria, close allies and the Arab world's chief anti-Western bulwark, broke with Britain when the British and French invaded Egypt last fall. British and Egyptian financial experts already have begun negotiations in Rome in an effort to reconcile their claims against each other.

Nehru will remain overnight in Damascus, conferring with President Shuqi al-Kuwatli and Premier Sabri al-M

WEAK HEARTS BEWARE - Dr. Slikin with an all star Hollywood cast will be on the stage of the Saenger theater Tuesday night in "House of the Living Dead." You'll see "Dracula" in person and also see him change to a bat and flying into the audience

THE STORY: More and more Dr. Garde Shelton is beginning to feel that he is only a "substitute" for Dr. Kurt Lillard, whom he has replaced at the Bayard clinic. Dr. Lillard was convicted on circumstantial evidence of a murder which many people believe he did not commit. Garde is continually reminded of how Kurt would have done things and now
he has been asked to escort Kurt's fiancee to a party.

CHAPTER XII

Nan was ready and looking very pretty in a thin dress of pink and white stuff; a huge rose was pinned at her waist, while beads were at her throat, with another row of them across the crown of her head. "I feel one just has to wear pink to go to Genevieve's," she told Garde gaily as they walked along the street.

A dozen fine cars were lined in the Copeland drive, and the brrrr of voices reached Nan and Garde before they reached the front door.

"Will you go through to the terrace?" murmured the maid.

"What'll happen if we don't?"
said Nan in Garde's ear.

"You don't get any food," he assured her.

"Heavens, don't let that happen
here!"

A buffet table was set up there, and the guests were all gathered out on the terrace. Genevieve and Howard came forward to greet them; glasses were thrust into their hands, and the Copeland daughter, Patty, was introduced to the new doctor.

Also, three grandchildren were piped out as possible future patients.

Garde looked thoughtfully after this slender, smart-looking daughter of the Copelands. Mother of four small children, she might have served as a model for any artist doing a picture of smart knew big families were the fashion among today's young people.

All four of the clinic doctors were guests, Ruble wearing the Bermuda shorts which Garde's mother had noticed. He looked very well in them, too, as he sat
with Tom Sandoxie upon the low, ivy-grown wall which enclosed the terrace.

When dinner was announced,
Garde went to Nan's side.

"You mean," Bill Marquardt demanded of her, "that you had to have an escort to walk you 200 yards?"

Nan laid her fingertips on Garde's arm. "I know, Bill," she said earnestly, "but what girl wouldn't? Look at him! I wouldn't trade him for Gregory Peck!"

Banter went back and forth across the terrace, stories were told, laughter was loud, and Garde listened to Nan's gaily and watched her reckless gestures, puzzled, surprised and even a little shocked. It was not what he had set down as Nan Stanfield's line.

"I understand," Nan continued,
"that the dimple in a man's tie
is an absolute test of his as a gentleman."

Garde ate a spear of asparagus, touched his pink-checked napkin to his lips and picked up his coffee cup. "I hate to disillusion you, my dear," he said, quite as seriously as she, "but there are gadgets to insure the dimple."

"I think it only fair to warn you that modern inventions being what they are," Garde continued,
"it wouldn't be safe for you to count on a man's breeding and taste because his tie shows the proper dimple."

Frank and Virginia exchanged delighted glances, but Nan looked oddly at Garde. "You wouldn't spoon me, would you, doctor?"

"Oh, absolutely not. This is the age of plastics. One can trust nothing. Synthetic tie dimples,

love, no doubt."

He broke off perforce against the sudden roar and rwhoop of the town's fire siren. A great clanging immediately set up, and the cocker spaniel lifted his nose in a howl of agony.

Garde had heard the village
fire alarm before and had marveled at its volume. Tonight the need for its noise was explained, because half of the men at the party immediately were on their feet, running down the steps to the drive and getting into several cars which whooshed off toward town.

"They're volunteers," Nan explained to Garde. "Fire department volunteers, you know."

He was standing. "Should I go too?"

"You'll be asked to join the volunteers, I expect."

He flushed. "Oh, it's a frat.
I'm sorry."

"There's no need to be sorry," Nan said to him. "The volunteers are chosen because of course they want a list of dependable men. I'm sure you'll be asked." She looked up, a shy smile of liking for him curving her lips.

Garde leaned toward her. This was more than Nan had thought she was, her quiet prettiness in direct contrast to the feverish gay-ety which she'd displayed earlier in the evening.

He took out cigarettes and gave her one, struck a match. In its light, her face came toward him out of the shadows, their two hands, her glowing eyes and lips.

"Why?" his deep voice asked.
She lifted her head. "Why what?"

"Why do you put on that act?
The gay, the brash, the bold. It doesn't seem your style."

Her hands flew out in a gesture of surrender. "I don't have much choice," she told him. "I don't want people being sorry for me.
I think young widows must have to put up the same sort of defense against constant pity. They too perhaps go to the far extreme."

DOGS

DOGS VS. AUTOS
By FARLEY MANNING

Statistics claim that there are approximately twenty-five million dogs and fifty-two million passenger cars in the United States, today. These are startling figures.
When you consider that both dogs
and cars use the same streets, it is easy to realize how often the two meet.

It is this very thing that is of grave concern to dog-owners and the National Dog Welfare Guild, especially now when warm weather tempts both dogs and drivers, to roam the great outdoors. If you have ever lost a dog because some driver was careless, says the Guild, and have experienced the heartache that his death has brought, then this concern is yours, too. Even if you don't have a dog of your own, remember when you see that four-footed friend by the side of the highway that someone loves him very dearly.

Drive carefully. Watch out for dogs on the road. Stop when you see them. Help them cross in safety. If will, at the most, mean only a few seconds' hold-up.

And if you are a dog owner,
teach your dog to respect cars
and use the same care in crossing streets that you do. Simply taking him in traffic on a leash will soon teach him to look both ways and wait for the lights.

Drivers are being asked to do their part to cut down the awful logs among pets but the pets and the pet owners must do their part, too.

Father and Son Had a Lucky Day

MENA - A construction company executive escaped injury
yesterday when his light plane crashed in a wooded area near here and a few hours later his 17-year-old son stepped out of a wrecked automobile without a scratch.

M. C. McGuire, 45, of near Mena was flying the plane alone. The crash occurred after he had tried to land at an airstrip here.

Witnesses said the plane got caught in a down-draught several hundred feet above the ground, skimming the treetops beyond the landing strip and plunged into the woods. The plane was demolished except for the cockpit but a physician examined McGuire and found no injuries.

McGuire, head of the McGuire
Construction Co., of Abilene, Tex., commuted to his ranch home near this west Arkansas city by plane.

His son Mickey was driving alone on state Highway 8 last night, six hours after the plane crash, when his car hit a hole in the road and went out of control.

The automobile careened off the highway and rolled over. It was badly damaged but young Mc-Guire was unscratched.

Commented Jean: "I guess he
was expecting me to explode, like
an Iowa Anna Magnani. I did snap back at him, and I guess he
liked it."

I asked Jean if she would like to settle here, and her answer will be a blow to the smogbound Chamber of Commerce.

"I don't know," she said. "I did fall in love with San Francisco, and it wouldn't be bad living here, knowing that San Francisco was so near."

Otto Preminger gave her the best kind of backing after choosing her from the ranks of unknowns to play the lead in "Saint Joan." From here she leaves for New York, London and then France, where she'll star for Preminger in "Bonjour Tristesse," with Deborah Kerr and David Niven.

The G. I. in transpacific telephone conversation yesterday told his older brother in the United States that "the whole Far East Command" was putting pressure on him but he didn't know what they were trying to get him to do.

Girard also said in the telephone talk that Levin had told him that he would get a stiffer sentence if tried by the Army than if tried by the Japanese court.

The soldier said he was holding the press conference to answer
only two questions.

The first one, he continued, was
"Has Maj. Levin been threatening me . . . The answer to that is no."

He said the second question was
"Is pressure being put on me by the Army?"

In telling his brother he was being ressured, William said, he meant "not that anyone is pushing me around, but that restriction is." The soldier is confined to Camp Whittington although not under arrest.

"I don't think he understood me too good," he said, of the telephone talk with his brother. "I couldn't hear him and he couldn't hear me."

Girard whispered frequently to both the general and major during the brief press conference and his hands, at one point, Gen.
Decker whispered to Girard something about making clear "you mean no person in the army."

The soldier answered "no comment" when asked whether Levin or anyone else had told him what Jaenes sentences run lighter than those given by Army courts-martial.

Decker on his arrival from Washington Wednesday said he had come to do all he could to protect Girard's interests. He had his first meeting with the soldier, for 45 minutes, just before the press conference.

Earlier, Levin acknowledged he discussed with Girard the relative advantages of being tried by a Japanese court or a court-martial.
He refused to say whether he advised Girard to accept the Japanese trial because conviction
probably would carry a lighter sentence.

Charles Hawkes, general manager of the federation, said that the group also would consider asking the state Livestock Sanitary Board for stricter enforcement of egg grading laws.

"When a house wife pays for grade A eggs she should be assured that an egg with a label is really an A egg," Hawkes said.

is huge, is not quite like calves'
liver but nearly so.

Cowfish are served with a soup
made of yucca, bananas, peppinos (a kind of small cucumber) and snapped heads. While wiping the last drop off our chins, the boss
came out with a tray of chipichips,
a tiny sweet clam native to South America.

For dessert we had fried bananas, fresh mangoes and watermelon.

The point of this peice is that cowfish are common in United States waters, too, notably around Florida only folks home wouldn't think of eating them.

The cowfish is a member of the trunkfish family, a prehistoric looking critter with a streamer trunk body that even he can't wiggle to swim. Locomotion is primarily achieved with his tail.

The maestro of the El Tirano restaurant splits his crawfish dish
the middle then pops the whole fish under a fire. The skin cracks off like slate when el toro is roasted. The result is a meat exactly like the breast of chicken - but more delicate. The liver, which

Young Star Undecided on Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD - Jean Seberg, 18, already a star in her first movie, has taken her first look at Hollywood, but it's still no decision on how she likes the town.

"I'm only here for two days,"
commented the Marshalltown, Iowa, beauty over breakfast at her hotel. "About my only impression of Hollywood has been from the inside of a cocktail party. And I'd hate to judge a town from a cocktail party."

If she did, the decision might be negative. The party was a reception in her honor and she had to receive hundreds of guests with poise and charm for over three hours. It's a tough job for a teenager.

But she carried it off well.
Much better than some of her guests, in fact. One asked her a question to deliberately shock her (he did). Another asked her a mundane question and snapped at her reply: "That's a cliché, and I hate clichés; I like people to be natural."

Commented Jean: "I guess he
was expecting me to explode, like
an Iowa Anna Magnani. I did
snap back at him, and I guess he
liked it."

I asked Jean if she would like
to settle here, and her answer will
